WHATCOM
HOSPICE
FOUNDATION

To Whom It May Concern:

As Board Member and Owners' Representative for the Whatcom Hospice Foundation I have worked with Dawson Construction, Mike McCallum and Ben Thompson for more than a year on the construction of Hospice House. The project, located in Bellingham Washington, involved renovation of an existing structure with extensive demolition and redesign into a state-of-the-art, 12 suite, residential, hospice care facility.

Throughout the project everyone connected with Dawson Construction has conducted himself or herself with the highest level of professionalism—from the office staff to the administration and supervisors to the workers in the field. As owners' rep, I have enjoyed seven day a week access to the principals involved with our project. This has made it possible to quickly and effectively resolve any questions that arose.

Dawson Construction, Mike McCallum and Ben Thompson have gone above and beyond expectations in completing Hospice House. Not only is the structure beautiful, but the project is coming in under budget and 30 days ahead of schedule. That is professionalism where it counts.

As a business owner, I am frequently asked to recommend other businesses with which I have working relationships. The people of Dawson Construction have earned my highest regard. I would gladly engage them in any future project with which I am associated and am happy to recommend their fine work to others.

If I can be of further help, please don't hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Michael Hammes
